KNOX ANZACS

1914-1919

Ray Peace

About the Book

One hundred years after the First World War began, Ray Peace tells the stories of the men that served in the conflict and the families they left behind.

They are stories of generosity, mateship, courage and sacrifice that embody and define the ANZAC spirit.

These compelling individual experiences are set against the big picture of the wider conflict, adding a human element to the story of the Great War.

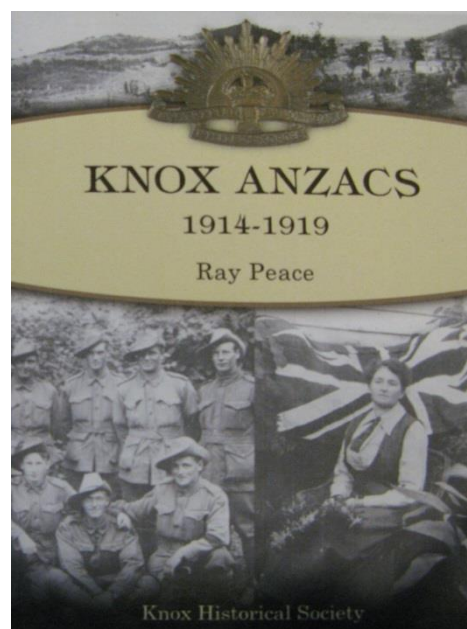

The City of Knox is marking the centenary of the War by setting up a memorial including the names of all those who died in World War 1 from the municipality now known as Knox. Knox Anzacs commemorates the personal stories behind the names.

About the Author

Ray Peace has had a life-long interest in local and military history. His publications include Bicycling Around Victoria, John Sharp: naval veteran and Eliza's Vision: A History of Wattle Park. He is the Vice-President of the Knox Historical Society, where he performs local and family research.
