

CALLING ALL 60 YEAR OLD BABY BOOMERS

My name is Lorna Edwards and I'm a journalist at The Age newspaper preparing a feature on babyboomers and the issues that affect them as they reach the milestone of turning 60 this year.

I am trying to track down people living in Melbourne who were born in 1946 (that year, specifically) for a short, painless interview! I would like to speak to both men and women on what it is like turning 60 and how they feel about issues that might affect them, as well as the babyboomers' legacy to younger generations. We would also like to photograph them.

If you know of anyone who fits the bill, could they please contact me at The Age on 9601 2629 or ledwards@theage.com.au
